Uncovering Welfare

Fraud . . .

Some Successes

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON

(Editor's Note) This is the last of a two-part series on investigation of welfare fraud in Ulster County which has resulted in substantial savings of taxpayer's dollars in the few months the new fraud bureau has been in existence.

Incredible coincidence combined with careful casework has uncovered an instance of welfare fraud in Ulster County which stretches not only the mind but across the country as well.

When the local welfare department received a long distance call one afternoon from a far western state's welfare office asking if a certain young woman's case here had been closed, Ulster officials were frankly astonished for the woman in question was at that very moment sitting in the Ulster County Welfare Office. She was waiting to find out why the welfare check usually mailed to her town post office box had been held up.

At that very moment, the callers from the west were insisting that the same woman was then seated in their office trying to get on their welfare rolls.

Obviously one of the young women was an imposter. Ulster welfare caseworkers first became suspicious of its young unwed pregnant woman client because she did not "look" pregnant when she applied for funds even though she had a doctor's certificate saying she was and she still did not "look" pregnant when she came in for recertification several months later. Their suspicions were confirmed somewhat when, two months after the baby was supposed to have been born (father unknown), the department had failed to receive a bill for hospital services. Meanwhile, the woman was being sent her assistance checks through the mail.

A check by welfare officials revealed that her checks were being picked up at her post office by a man, but were being deposited by a woman to the client's bank account.

Fraud was definitely determined when Ulster caseworkers questioned the woman in their office immediately after the west coast telephone call and found she could not answer simple questions such as where she was born? None of her answers matched those on the original client's welfare application.

Although the case is still not closed, it has been determined that apparently the original client was pregnant, had her baby in a large metropolitan area and received welfare assistance there before she traveled to the west coast. Meanwhile, her child's alleged father, was the one apparently picking up her checks at the post office and passing them on to a look-alike friend of the young mother, who deposited the checks to the bank account.

The impersonator of the welfare client claimed she did not know that what she was doing was wrong and now the Ulster

Welfare Department is attempting to obtain restitution from the young mother on the west coast in the amount she obtained fraudulently—about $800.

Not all of Ulster County's fraud cases are so complicated but they have been many and varied and that is why Social Services Commissioner Bernhardt S. Kramer is enthused over the instant success the newly inaugurated Fraud Division is experiencing in weeding out the fraudulent in its first six weeks of existence.

Kramer asks that the community cooperate also by relaying any information they may feel is pertinent to welfare cases. The identity of callers will not be sought but the fraud unit will check out every complaint it gets, according to Kramer.

The commissioner also explained that there has been a certain amount of insurance frauds perpetrated in that persons with health insurance secured through their place of employment have, after receiving direct payment from insurance companies, still sought medical assistance from the Department of Social Services. Kramer said that local businessmen and manufacturers have been cooperating with his department in supplying information concerning those enrolled in their company health plans.

Information may be forwarded to the welfare department by calling the County Office Building at 331-9300 and asking for the Fraud Unit.

Legal Maneuvers Delay McGivern, Culhane Trial

By MATT SPIRENG

KINGSTON

With one defense attorney in federal court seeking a change of venue and two other defense attorneys arguing pre-trial motions and "procedural matters" in the judge's chambers, the delay continued today in the long-awaited third murder trial of Gerald McGivern and Charles Culhane.

McGivern and Culhane, accused of the 1968 shooting death of a Westchester County sheriff's deputy on the New York State Thruway near Plattekill, were ushered into the Ulster County Courthouse at about 9:30 a. m. today, with jury screening slated to get underway at about 10 a. m.

But jury selection never even got off the ground as Culhane's wellknown New York City attorney, Henry Rothblatt, was in federal court for the Southern District of New York seeking to have the murder trial moved into federal court.

And, as 250 potential jurors crowded the courtroom, defense attorneys Karen Peters, who represents McGivern, and Andrew Zweben appearing for Rothblatt, and District Attorney Francis J. Vogt and Assistant District Attorney Michael Kavanagh were in chambers with presiding Judge Robert Ecker, arguing "procedural matters" according to Zweben.

Morning proceedings began with Supreme Court Justice Ellis Staley presiding and dismissing more than one-third of the 250 potential jurors who asked to be discharged. At about 10:30 a. m., Judge Staley, after swearing in remaining jurors, called a brief recess and told the jurors they would soon be turned over to Schoharie County Judge Robert Ecker, called in to preside in the murder trial last year.

But as the morning wore on, it became apparent that the delay would continue, and at noon the potential jurors were told there would be an adjournment until 2 p. m., due to pre-trial proceedings underway in chambers.

According to Assistant D.A. Kavanagh, Rothblatt had gone to the federal district court where he was seeking to have the trial removed from Judge Ecker's jurisdiction on the grounds that his client, Culhane, is effectively being denied his rights because he, Rothblatt, is not well enough to go on with the trial.

Rothblatt previously attempted to have the trial delayed because of his ill health. Judge Ecker denied that motion last month.

Rothblatt then took the matter to the Appellate Division, where he was also turned down last week.

McGivern, now 30, and Culhane, now 29, are accused of the murder of Westchester County Sheriff's Deputy William Fitzgerald, 63, in a wild shootout on the Thruway near Plattekill on Sept. 13, 1968, during an alleged escape attempt.

At the time of the alleged shooting, McGivern, Culhane and a third prisoner, Robert Bowerman, were being transported from Auburn prison to Westchester County for a court appearance. Bowerman also died in the shootout.

A chief prosecution witness is expected to be Joseph Singer, 64, a former Westchester County sheriff's deputy who was driving Fitzgerald's car at the time of the alleged escape attempt.

Singer, Culhane and McGivern also were reported injured in the incident.

In 1968, Culhane was under sentence in Auburn prison for terms of 7 1/2 to 10 years and 10 to 20 years in connection with an alleged holdup attempt in Pelham Manor in 1966. McGivern was serving a 7 1/2 to 10 year sentence for robbery and assault.

The first trial of McGivern and Culhane in 1970 ended in a hung jury.

Their second trial, in 1971, ended in conviction. Both men were sentenced to death. Later, however, the death penalty under which they were sentenced was overturned.

In 1973, the State Court of Appeals overturned the 1971 conviction and ordered a new trial due to technical irregularities in jury selection.

County Judge Raymond J. Mino, who had presided in the first two murder trials of the pair, disqualified himself last February and Judge Ecker was called in.

Henry K, Shah Discuss Oil and Mideast

ZURICH (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger flew here from London today for oil talks with the Shah of Iran — "an old and trusted friend of the United States" and a key figure in any Middle East settlement.

Kissinger flew in aboard his Air Force Boeing 707 jet after talks in London with British Prime Minister Harold Wilson and other leaders. He flies on to Paris later today for talks with French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing and Foreign Minister Jean Sauvagnargues.

"The Shah of Iran is an old and trusted friend of the United States, and we consider it important to consult with him on the situation in the Middle East, energy and world problems," Kissinger said in a brief arrival statement.

He then drove off to lunch as the Shah's guest at the luxurious Dolder Grand Hotel in the outskirts of Zurich.

The Shah and Kissinger met alone for about 20 minutes before lunching.

Kissinger's Travels . . . A New Movement . . . Story Page 18

The meal was restricted to two aides — the Shah and Iran's ambassador to Washington, Ardeshir Zahedi, and Kissinger and Joseph Sisco, deputy secretary of state.

The Shah and Kissinger planned a joint statement before Kissinger's scheduled departure for Paris in the late afternoon.

Iran has supplied most of Israel's oil for the past 25 years and Kissinger is expected to seek a commitment that Iran will continue to supply Israel with oil if Israel withdraws from the Egyptian Abu Rodeis oil fields in the Sinai.

Before leaving London, Kissinger had breakfast with Margaret Thatcher, the new leader of the British opposition Conservative Party who could become Europe's first woman prime minister. He had conferred with Wilson Monday evening.

The Shah is a firm supporter of high oil prices, a policy which differs with Kissinger's proposal for a guaranteed lower floor price.

The Shah in talks with Giscard d'Estaing in St. Moritz Monday indicated a possible lowering of oil prices if the cost of industrial and farm products imported by oil producers are also reduced.

Before leaving London Kissinger and British Foreign Secretary James Callaghan praised one another's efforts towards peace in the Middle East and détente with the Soviet Union.

The Shah apparently was breaking protocol to come to Zurich to see Kissinger. He did not leave St. Moritz to see Giscard d'Estaing, who outranks the secretary of state.

Their meeting in Zurich resulted in the tightest security measures the city has seen.

Simon Sees Economic Upswing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Treasury Secretary William E. Simon told Congress today the nation's economy should be "on the road to recovery" by the end of the year.

In testimony before the House Appropriations Committee, Simon predicted that inflation will be less its present doubledigit level, money will be flowing into the housing industry and American consumers, with some extra money in their pockets from a tax break, will be spending more.

But for the rest of the year, he said, unemployment and inflation "will both be high." The actions President Ford wants to take will not begin to take hold until the end of the year, he said.

Alan Greenspan, chairman of Ford's Council of Economic Advisers, told the committee, "although we are well along in the recession process, it has not yet run its full course. Essentially, however, we foresee a bottoming out in the economy by mid-year."

Simon said he believes "the economic trends this year should be distinctly better than last year."

"While unemployment was rising at the end of 1974, we expect it to be falling by the end of 1975. While the rate of inflation was above 10 per cent at the end of 1974, it should fall below 10 per cent by the end of 1975. Thus, as we enter 1976, even though our progress may be slower than anyone would like, we expect that the nation will definitely be on the road to recovery."

Meanwhile, President Ford

met with Republican congressional leaders at a White House breakfast meeting today and set aside most of the week to marshal GOP forces against opposition to his anti-recession program in the Democratic Congress.

Monday night, with Vice President Nelson Rockefeller at his side, Ford dined the conservative wing of the Republican party, including several senators who had discussed over the weekend the possibility of forming a third party.

Among them were Sens. Jesse Helms, N.C.; James Buckley, N.Y.; Barry Goldwater, and Strom Thurmond, S.C.

Ford kept up the pressure on party stalwarts tonight with another dinner at the White House for the so-called "Wednesday Club."

His aim was to get enough Republican votes in the Senate to sustain his expected veto of a bill to suspend for 90 days his oil import tariff increases.

The President also was pushing for action on other parts of his energy-economic recovery program, and has been chiding lawmakers in his out-of-town trips for "wasting time."

In his meetings with Republicans, Ford was seeking the bonus of trying to build support for his presidential candidacy in 1976.

Manpower Chief Estimates

13.5 Pct. County Jobless Seen

KINGSTON

Unemployment in Ulster County could reach 13.5 per cent by the end of the year, according to Robert C. (Josh) Randall, administrator of Ulster County's Temporary Manpower Office.

Randall, whose office utilizes federal funds to provide jobs for the swelling ranks of the unemployed in Ulster County, says his projection is based on a "gut feeling" that the area's employment situation is bound to get considerably worse before it gets better.

"The national experts say they believe that unemployment will continue to increase over the next 12 months," Randall said, "if it's going to be that bad on the national level, you can imagine what it's going to be like in Ulster County."

Unemployment in Ulster County—an area which traditionally has among the highest jobless rates in New York State—is now listed officially at eight per cent. But Randall believes the current figure may be closer to 9.5 per cent. The national jobless rate is 8.2 per cent.

"I don't know how the state determines our unemployment rate," he commented, "but there is every indication that it is understated by at least a full percentage point."

Randall told the Freeman today that owners of the small "mom and pop" businesses in Ulster County are becoming increasingly desperate about the tight money situation. "Several have told me that unless there's more money to go around, unless people start paying their bills, they're going to have to start laying off some people," said Randall.

But Randall said he has no information that larger firms in Ulster County—like Rotron and Channel Master—will be laying off even more workers as the year progresses.

And, Randall said he is not optimistic that the traditional economic upturn that occurs each summer in this area will take place this year. He pointed out that the construction trades, which provide thousands of seasonal jobs each summer, will probably continue to feel the impact of tight mortgage money and the reluctance of businesses to expand their facilities in these economically depressed times.

Randall's Manpower office currently has some $1.9 million in federal funds to provide employment for some 650 local workers. But he said at this morning's Chamber of Commerce breakfast meeting that an additional $1.5 million that may be forthcoming later this year won't even come close to providing jobs for all the people looking for work.

Hospitals Need Malpractice Relief

ALBANY
"Some hospitals in New York State may be forced to curtail patient services after July 1, unless the State Legislature provides relief from the medical malpractice insurance dilemma," according to George B. Allen, president of the Hospital Association of New York State (HANYS).

"While much attention has been given to physicians' problems with medical malpractice insurance, the effects on hospitals and the impact on the entire community have not been explained fully," he said.

According to Allen, hospitals are seriously affected in two ways. First, many institutions are billed for increases in their own malpractice premiums of 300 per cent and more. Secondly, doctors have said they cannot practice without their own malpractice coverage and unless legislative relief is found, some physicians in New York may refuse to see patients after July 1.

In January, the Argonaut Insurance Company announced it was terminating medical malpractice insurance for the majority of New York's physicians on June 30.

The HANYS represents 300 non-profit health care institutions in the state. Allen said, "The association is in sympathy with the medical profession in the need to find a solution to the malpractice dilemma. The malpractice situation with hospitals is as serious as that besetting the medical profession; hospitals must be included in any legislation seeking to control this problem."

According to information provided by the HANYS, hospitals' costs for malpractice insurance premiums increased almost 170 per cent between 1974 and 1975, with some individual institutions experiencing much higher increases.

The HANYS says these costs cannot be absorbed by the hospital but must be passed on to patients.

"More than half of New York's voluntary hospitals operated at a deficit during 1973; the situation worsened in 1974 and the added burden of million-dollar insurance premiums would be intolerable. The only recourse is to pass these costs on to the patient and it could mean an additional two to three dollars a day. Hospitals are reluctant to do this, but there is no alternative unless the State Legislature can react to the needs of the medical profession, the community and the hospitals which serve them," he said.

UCCC Grads' Survey

STONE RIDGE

A follow-up survey has disclosed that 52 per cent of last June's graduates at Ulster County Community College are employed full or part-time and 41 per cent are continuing their education either full or part-time according to Dr. David L. Bartlett, the Dean of Students.

More than 75 per cent of the 369 UCCC students who received degrees and diplomas last June responded to the survey.

The majority of the graduates who received Associate in Arts Degrees are continuing their education. The Associate in Arts Degrees encourages further collegiate study.

Seventy-four per cent of those receiving the A.A. Degree are engaged in further full or part-time study, while 35 per cent are employed either full or part-time.

More than 78 per cent of the Associate in Applied Science Degree graduates (a program leading to immediate employment) are employed according to the survey. Better than 26 per cent are continuing their education on a full or part-time basis.

Dr. Bartlett said that approximately 74 per cent of those employed with the Associate in Applied Science and Diploma degrees are working in areas directly related to their training. He added that the Electrical Technology, Data Processing, Accounting and Community Service Assistant programs are noteworthy in the placement of graduates in areas related to their training.

Carey Has Commuter Rail Plan

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Saying that commuter rail service in the New York City area could stop by March 1 without additional funds, Gov. Hugh L. Carey has suggested that the state and city provide $70 million to keep the trains running.

Carey sent a letter to various officials Monday giving details of a $45 million state loan to the Metropolitan Transportation Authority, as well as a plan to let the MTA delay repayment of another $22 million state loan.

The plan also takes into account some $25 million in aid which New York City officials have already promised the MTA.

Carey's letter was sent to New York City Mayor Abraham D. Beame, the county executives of Nassau, Suffolk and Westchester, the chairman of the Rockland County legislature and MTA chairman David Yunich.

The governor, a former Democratic congressman from Brooklyn, said he would seek immediate action on the $67 million plan. A spokesman for Carey said it was hoped the bill could be before the proper committees by Wednesday.

The measure includes deferring the MTA's scheduled repayment of $22 million advanced by the state for station maintenance. The plan also calls for a cash advance to the MTA of $45 million, subject to repayment.

The letter said the money was intended for the authority to "meet a cash shortfall and thereby continue its operations through the present state fiscal year."

"The accumulated, unfunded current operating deficit for the MTA commuter railroads is estimated to reach nearly $22 million," Carey said. "Without immediate state assistance, the authority would be forced to stop commuter rail service on or about March 1."

According to MTA figures, New York City Transit Authority cannot meet its cash operating requirements for February and March without an advance of $70 million. No federal funds will be available to the authority prior to April 1, Carey said.

Recession-Minded Governors Open Conference

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's governors, feeling the pinch of recession separately, converged on Washington today to find out together what the Ford administration is doing about it.

The three-day winter meeting of the National Governors Conference was to be devoted almost entirely to "Priorities for Domestic Economic Adjustment."

The governors — 46 had confirmed their attendance by last weekend — invited President Ford to sit with them Wednesday and scheduled appearances by Director James Lynn of the Office of Management and Budget, Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton, Treasury Secretary William Simon and presidential economic adviser William Seidman.

They also planned meetings with congressional leaders to discuss the same topic — economic recovery.

The governors were not expected, however, to adopt policy statements either in support of Ford's economic and energy plans or favoring the opposition Democrats on Capitol Hill. The bi-partisan conference usually does not adopt resolutions at its annual winter meetings and does so at its mid-year sessions only after positions have been worked out that do not inflame partisan sentiments.

The first day of the conference was set aside for closed-door committee meetings, although many of the governors came to the gatherings eager to offer their views to a national audience.

As of Friday evening, all the governors had notified the conference they were coming to Washington except Richard Pryor of Arkansas, Edmund Brown Jr. of California, Edwin Edwards of Louisiana and James Rhodes of Ohio.

As a result of the 1974 elections, there are now 36 Democrats, 13 Republicans and one independent in the nation's statehouses.

BENTSEN AND NO. 1 SUPPORTER (UPI)

Bentsen Becomes Fifth in Demo Sweepstakes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More than a year before the first primary, five candidates formally have announced they will seek the Democratic presidential nomination in 1976. More are expected.

The latest entry is Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, a wealthy 54-year-old Texan, who has succeeded both in politics and business.

He joined Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington, Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona, former Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma, and former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter.

Alabama Gov. George Wallace and former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford are considered almost certainties, and there may be others tempted to jump into the wide-open campaign.

Bensten used the stagesetting of the historic Senate caucus room to make his long-anticipated announcement. Numerous presidential candidates have launched their formal campaigns from the same spot.

The first-term Texas senator said he reached his decision after exploratory visits to 30 states convinced him he could win the nomination. His wife, Beryl Ann, also was on hand.

He told a news conference "I'm in it for the duration." In his prepared statement, Bentsen said he was running as a "national" candidate and rejected a question that he would be hurt by coming from oil-rich Texas.

"I don't believe the fact that you are from any one state is a handicap," he said.

Asked to identify his base of support, Bentsen conceded that most of his early money had come from his home state and added "if a man doesn't have support there, he shouldn't start."

But he quickly added, "I found strong support in almost all the major states I've gone into."

Asked what he would do to increase his recognition rating, Bentsen said he planned to spend weekends, recesses, and some nights on the hustings but promised "I am not going to make any outrageous statements" to attract attention.

Bentsen said he will enter a "representative number" of primaries but will not decide which ones until sometime in July. He added it would be "physically and financially impossible" to enter them all.

Bentsen also told newsmen he could foresee no circumstances that would get him to bow out before the convention. And asked whether he would accept the vice presidential nomination, Bentsen said "I should say not."

Chrysler Suffers Worst Quarter in History

DETROIT (UPI) — Chrysler Corp.'s two top executives are warning of further belt-tightening in the wake of a $73.5 million fourth quarter loss that pushed the No. 3 automaker $52 million in the red for 1974. It was the worst financial performance in the company's 50-year history.

Chrysler Chairman Lynn Townsend and President John Riccardo said "a succession of increasingly difficult problems" — including the early 1974 gasoline shortage, political uncertainty in mid-summer, high interest rates, inflation and the Ford administration's attempts to cut consumer spending by urging people to save money — were to blame for the losses.

In the financial statement, the two said further cost reduction programs, as they take effect, will restore profitability "even if today's depressed level of sales should continue." Chrysler has 51,500 of its 114,000 hourly workers on indefinite layoff along with at least 50 per cent of its salaried work force.

Along with cutbacks in Chrysler operations that included a virtual Thanksgiving to New Year's shutdown, they said, several positive economic developments — including declining interest rates, predictions of dwindling inflation and a planned tax cut — could restore profitability to the firm.

Townsend and Riccardo said early results of the company's rebate program — started Jan. 12 as the first effort to stimulate lagging auto sales — have been encouraging. Early February sales topped figures from the same period a year earlier for the first time since 1975 models were introduced. The executives did not indicate whether rebates would be continued.

The fourth quarter and 1974 losses didn't reflect any of the costs Chrysler has incurred in the rebate program it began Jan. 12, the first effort of its kind to stimulate lagging sales.

Industry analysts expect a sharp first quarter loss at all of the auto companies because of the price rebates, which some analysts say will cost at least $150 million just in cash payments to customers before they end Feb. 28. Chrysler executives did not indicate whether the rebates will continue.

Chrysler sales in 1974 dropped less than 6 per cent, from a record $11.8 billion in 1973 to $11 billion in 1974. Record earnings of $255.4 million in 1973 evaporated into the record $52 million loss. The company's worst previous loss was a $29.7 million red ink performance in 1958.

Meany Sees Need of $30 Billion Cut

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — AFL-CIO President George Meany says it will take a $30 billion tax break to turn off the recession — and even that amount will not stop the slide toward 10 per cent unemployment.

"Events are overtaking not only the President but the Congress. Things are getting worse every day," he said Monday.

"There has been some progress over on the (Capitol) Hill," he said. He added the House tax cut legislation "doesn't go as far as we had hoped, but it is a tremendous improvement over the President's program."

Meany said it will take much more than a $20 billion tax relief bill to turn back the recession. "I think they will have to go as high as $30 billion."

Meany said he hoped a group of "so-called liberals" do not wreck the tax legislation by inviting a Senate filibuster with an amendment to raise taxes on oil companies. Meany said the issues, tax relief and the oil depletion allowance, should be treated in separate legislation.

Earlier this month, Meany forecast unemployment at 10 per cent. The current rate is 8.2 per cent, or 7.5 million jobless workers. Meany said he intended to stand by that forecast, but added he now viewed it as optimistic.

"People are reaching the end of their 26 weeks of unemployment benefits," Meany said. "They are getting to the point they are no longer consumers. Unemployment is going to cause more unemployment."

Meany said congressmen should use some of their recess time to visit unemployment insurance offices. He said President Ford also should get closer to the problem but should not take security risks.

Meany said that when the $20 billion tax cut was first proposed, "I thought that was adequate. I don't think it is adequate now."

Meany assessed President Ford's chances of reelection in 1976 as "very poor" if there is no substantial improvement in the economy.

Jaworski Bares a Plea for Nixon

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) —

Former Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski said Monday he received a plea last fall from Richard Nixon's attorney asking Jaworski not to indict the former president.

Jaworski, in a speech to the Texas Daily Newspaper Association, said Nixon's attorney, Herbert Miller, "said that in view of the massive publicity of the impeachment proceedings as well as the president's resignation, a fair trial under the Constitution could not be given to Nixon and, accordingly, that it was useless to return an indictment of him."

"Mr. Miller submitted well reasoned arguments in support of his position and strongly urged that any consideration of an indictment be dropped," Jaworski said.

But Jaworski said he had already decided, before receiving Miller's plea, that it would be difficult to indict Nixon and impossible for the former president to receive a fair trial during the first nine to 12 months immediately following his resignation.

Jaworski said when Ford was considering a pardon for Nixon, some of the President's aides approached him for his analysis of the situation.

"The massive publicity in the hearing and the findings that ensued in the reversal of judgment of the number of members of the Republican party following release of the June 23 tape recording and the statements carried nationwide, and finally, the resignation of Richard M. Nixon, require a delay, before selection of jury is begun, of a period from nine months to a year, perhaps even longer," Jaworski said he told Ford's aides.

Jaworski also said Ford's aides asked him specifically how long it would take Nixon to come to trial if he had been indicted and what areas had been investigated in connection with charges that could have been filed against the President.

"I'm just speculating, but that may have been an element in the pardoning," Jaworski said.

WHAT A BUYERS MARKET THIS IS!

In all probability, we've now hit bottom on the prices of many of the things you want to buy. Consider some of the facts:

1. Right now, product inventories in most categories are extremely high. In many instances this is causing manufacturers and dealers to lower prices considerably. Automobile dealers today, for example, have record-high stocks of new cars and trucks. So they're ready to "deal" like never before.
2. Trade-in values are way up. In the automobile business, trade-in allowances on used vehicles are at record highs. So you can save even more on new cars and trucks.
3. Inflation is slowing down, but it will still add dollars to automobiles and any major items you decide to buy in the future rather than now.

Ruinous Budgets

The facts are these: New York State residents are taxed 21 per cent above the second highest state and an unbelievable 55 per cent above the national average on a per capita basis. And according to all expectations New Yorkers are going to have to come up with more.

Governor Carey's proposed budget calls for the raising of an additional $806 million in increased taxation, the largest and most controversial being the 10 cents-a-gallon gasoline tax. Others would include increases in income tax, business tax, wine and liquor taxes, auto registration fees and sundry others. There is even talk in Albany of reviving the defunct surtax on incomes that we were saddled with a few years back so that the state can remain financially afloat.

The latest Citizens Public Expenditure Survey reports that just about all of the additional income for the state will be ladled out to localities with $804 million, or 90 per cent of the proposed increase, slated for local assistance. This massive increase in local assistance is largely attributable to hefty increases in aid to both education and welfare, the perennial money grabbers. But isn't it about time state lawmakers realize that the string is running out as far as the state taxpayers' ability to pay is concerned.

A general belt tightening, not only in the welfare and education fields, but in all other aspects of running local government is required. The cost of county government is now estimated at $3.1 billion, and every year it keeps getting more costly. Another cause of skyrocketing budgets is mandated expenditures, set up by past state legislatures. This program is greatly responsible for the financial trouble we're now in. Spending programs, mandated without the slightest conception of where the revenue is coming from, is proving ruinous for all of us.

Good Choices

The nomination of Carla Anderson Hills to be secretary of housing and urban development brings to three the series of remarkable Cabinet appointments made by President Ford. If confirmed Mrs. Hills would be only the third woman Cabinet officer in history, but it is more significant that in any case she is an exceptionally capable person.

She has this in common with Mr. Ford's new attorney general, Edward H. Levi, and with his nominee for secretary of labor, John T. Dunlop. None of the three is unduly identified with partisan politics; all have excellent backgrounds of training and accomplishment. Thus far the President's Cabinet choices have been first-rate.

By JACK ANDERSON
with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON—The Justice Department has been accused of using Watergate tactics to kill a Senate investigation of the Drug Enforcement Administration.

In a blistering letter to Atty. Gen. Edward Levi, Senate Investigations Chairman Henry Jackson, D-Wash., has charged that his probe is being obstructed by Justice Department officials using "practices which I had hoped had been eradicated once and for all from the American political scene."

The officials not only turned "to bar Subcommittee Counsel from reviewing pertinent files," the senator charged, but also "are compiling a dossier on one of the investigators working on the case."

Jackson called this "an obvious attempt to discredit (the investigator) and the Subcommittee and deflate this investigation."

Last month, we reported the DEA's top command has become virtually paralyzed by dissension. The top narcotics officials had been so busy investigating one another, we wrote, that they had little time to cope with dope smugglers.

Narcotics chief John Bartels had complained privately, we wrote, that his underlings have used investigations to blackmail one another. We described how Bartels is struggling to unite four feuding narcotics agencies under one roof.

Senator Jackson immediately ordered his investigators to check into our charges. The Justice Department tried to head them off, however, by going behind their backs to Senate Judiciary Chairman James Eastland, D-Miss., and Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., the ranking Republican.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Jackson Claims His Probe Obstructed

We have established that Deputy Atty. Gen. Larry Silberman and Justice official James Hutchinson secretly urged the two senators to hold a separate, whitewash probe of DEA.

Hutchinson also confirmed to us that he had raised questions about the conduct of committee lawyer Keith Adkinson and investigator William Gallinaro. But Hutchinson denied Jackson's charge that the Justice Department is collecting information on Gallinaro.

Our sources, supporting Jackson, say Justice Department officials have been reviewing their files for information that could be used to embarrass Gallinaro.

But these tactics, apparently, have backfired. Declared Jackson: "The desperate nature of (your) actions only intensifies my desire to make a sweeping examination of the Drug Enforcement Administration. I have, therefore, directed staff to commit all necessary personnel and resources to this investigation."

OPIMUM SUBSIDY: The United States may have to launder millions of dollars through the United Nations to subsidize Turkish opium farmers.

The Turks are demanding financial aid to refine opium by the expensive straw process, which would help to control illicit heroin trafficking.

They expect the United Nations to put up the money, thereby helping to bail out their poppy farmers. And the United Nations, of course, expects the United States to foot the bill.

Under a 1972 agreement, the United States paid Turkey $35.7 million to ban opium production. But last June, the Turks announced that, because of economic hardship, they would resume opium cultivation.

Now it looks as if the United States will have to continue the subsidy, laundering it through the United Nations, in order to get Turkey to use the safer straw refining process.

A United Nations mission, headed by Sir Harry Greenfield, chairman of the International Narcotics Control Board, has just visited Turkey to persuade the government to control the new opium production.

The progress of these backstage negotiations has been reported to Washington by American Ambassador William Macomber in a confidential cable.

"Turks apparently expected current Greenfield mission to come with the authority to agree on compensation figure," the cable declares bluntly. "And when they learned Sir Harry did not have such authority, the Turks declined to discuss basis on which their compensation proposal had been calculated until UN agreed to provide money."

With the Turks, in other words, it's money that talks. If the money is not paid, a new tide of heroin can be expected to flood the back streets of America.

Footnote: The confidential cable also quotes Greenfield as reporting that the Turks "appear to have sufficient manpower and resources to mount an effective control program" but "have not yet taken the necessary steps to insure coordination of control efforts" by different police agencies.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: While President Ford is asking federal agencies to cut back their spending to the bone, the Navy is laying out $31,400 to put de luxe furnishings, pictures and lighting into the admiral's flag cabin aboard the carrier Nimitz. . . . An irreplaceable landscape of Mexico by painter Thomas Moran has been stolen from the National Collection of Fine Arts here. The museum has called in the FBI as part of its search for the $25,000 masterpiece.

Cliff Hanger

By William F. Buckley

There are a number of rather mean interpretations floating about Great Britain to account for the astonishing victory of Mrs. Thatcher, the most pointed of which is that the Tories have no prospects whatever of taking power so they may as well have a spell of tokenism under a woman leader, after which, when the next election contest looms, she can be dumped and replaced by someone serious. Another is that the Conservative Party has really become a verminiferous appendix of British politics and, under the circumstances it makes no particular difference who is the Opposition Leader, and Mrs. Thatcher is superbly qualified to serve as a Nobody.

Mr. Malcolm Muggeridge,

who is terrifyingly skilled in the art of disparagement, was asked on television a few days after Mrs. Thatcher's victory to account for it. "Her victory is the direct result of a medium," he said, remarking yet again the frequently remarked absence, in Edward Heath, of telegraphic charm. "Does Mrs. Thatcher come through on television?" he was asked. "Well," he said with his dangerous, angelic smile, "she has a certain imbecile charm."

The English approach to politics is these days entirely hedonistic. Inasmuch as the country is headed toward the cliff, and nobody has the combination of will and power to keep it from going over, everybody is enjoying the parade. The Daily Telegraph, whose political reporters are a joy to read, gave an account of the debate in the House of Commons on the afternoon just before the vote that deposed Edward Heath. Everyone's mind was on the forthcoming vote. "What was needed," writer John O'Sullivan solemnly noted on his dispatch, above all in this tense atmosphere was a good joke—and that was provided by Mr. Robert Adley (C., Christchurch and Lymington) and fate working in unison.

"Mr. Adley had put down a question on the order paper. Would Mr. Wilson place in the Commons Library a copy of his speech on the current economic situation delivered on Monday 20th of January to the TUC Labour Party Liaison Committee?"

"No," replied Mr. Wilson. "I made no such speech."

"Then that," responded Mr. Adley, neatly avoiding a bad fall "would account for its absence from the Library." Relieved by the opportunity to break the tension, MPs on all sides laughed uproariously.

Another reporter, Mr. Adrian Berry, during the blissfully short (one week) campaign involving Mr. Whitelaw and Mrs. Thatcher, led off his story two days before the election as follows: "Mrs. Margaret Thatcher appeared to increase her chances of election victory as Party leader yesterday when she received a standing ovation of one minute and ten seconds after speaking to some 700 people at the Young Conservatives National Conference at Eastbourne.

"Mr. William Whitelaw, by contrast, seemed to lose ground by his failure to produce a speech.

Instead, restricting himself to questions and answers, he replied to dull questions in a somewhat dull manner—mainly on the fairly dull subject of the future devolution of political power."

That is good straightforward stuff, and should be emulated by all American reporters.

But note the standing ovation for Mrs. Thatcher—by young Conservatives. They like her because she is wonderfully straightforward and, mirabile dictu, unapologetically conservative concerning things like inflation labor union make-work, the tyranny of the Trade Union Congress. Her background is impressive in a party that has tended, when looking for a leader to thumb through lists of unemployed Etonians. She worked her way through school and became a research chemist. In her twenties, she became interested in the law—and took a law degree and practiced. That is the kind of upward mobility the Socialists are always talking about, and always resenting because, after all, if you rise, almost by definition you rise with reference to others who do not.

Mrs. Thatcher has communicated successfully at least to the Young Conservatives, and indeed to the majority of Conservative members in the House of Commons, that she wants others in England to have the same opportunities she has had: which means an opportunity for the Kingdom to rise up from the sticky coils of egalitarian socialism. It is my guess she bears watching. Put me down as a fan.

cannot hide. If the Soviet navy is bringing its warships to Um Qasr, they must go through the Strait of Hormuz (at the entrance to the Persian Gulf). The Iranians see every ship that goes through the strait.

The admiral claimed that the Soviet flag has been seen in waters around Um Qasr only when Iraq took delivery of a Soviet-made patrol or minesweeping vessel. Indeed, he said, the northern edge of the Persian Gulf is dangerously shallow, suited only for the small-bore vessels the Iraqi navy services at Um Qasr: minesweepers, coastal patrol, torpedo boats and small Soviet-built rocket ships.

Western European specialists in Baghdad, who have never been permitted to inspect the Um Qasr port facilities, told us that although destroyer-size vessels can navigate the estuary up to Um Qasr, the port's confinement and vulnerability to channel obstruction make it highly undesirable as a "naval base" for Moscow or anyone else.

The significance of opening Um Qasr to Western view, however, transcends its dubious utility, present or future, as a "Soviet naval base." Rather, it underlines this ambiguity: despite its Moscow treaty, the singletmost nationalistic, anti-western Arab state now courts Western help to achieve rapid economic growth financed by vast oil riches.

Inside Report

Iraq Seeks Western Help

BASRA, Iraq—The fact that Saddam Hussein, the leader of Iraq's revolutionary Ba'ath government, personally lifted the secrecy veil so that we could visit the "Soviet naval base" at Um Qasr on the Persian Gulf tells much about the subtleties of Iraq's nationalistic foreign policy.

Despite the Iraqi-Soviet treaty of 1972, the force of Arab nationalism which gave the Ba'ath party dictatorial power in the 1968 revolution acts as a brake on Soviet or any other foreign influence.

That helps explain Saddam Hussein's response when we asked about alleged Soviet base rights to Um Qasr.

Um Qasr is, indeed, a mini-naval base. However, the Iraqi patrol and torpedo boat navy base we saw, along with fishing and small cargo ships seemed far removed from the "Soviet naval base" the Pentagon listed last year as one of three major Soviet bases in the Persian Gulf-Indian Ocean regions, chips in super-power rivalry for control of strategic oil lanes.

Um Qasr lies on a shallow, narrow estuary at the northwest edge of the Persian Gulf. It consists of half a dozen jetties or piers built out into the estuary from naked sand, three of which are incomplete, plus housing for 1,200 officers and men of the minuscule Iraqi navy.

In late November, after President Ford asked for funds for a new U.S. Navy installation on the Indian Ocean island of Diego Garcia, the Pentagon listed Um Qasr along with two other Soviet bases—Aden, in South Yemen, and Berbera do indeed quarter and service Soviet naval vessels. Even if they did not, the proposed American installation at Diego Garcia to counter the muscular Soviet presence in South Asian waters has more than ample justification.

But as of today, U.S. fears that the mini-port of Um Qasr is also a Soviet naval base seem grossly inflated.

We flew there from Basra in a French-built Alouette III helicopter across perhaps 50 miles of flat, empty sand, barren of any habitation, until we reached the cluster of sheds, housing and headquarters buildings of the Iraqi navy at Um Qasr. Riding at anchor in a slow current of the narrow estuary were a couple of small freighters. We saw no sign of heavy naval stores, ammunition, spare parts, guns and other accoutrements of a Soviet naval base.

Before embarking on our tour, the Iraqi naval commander, Adm. Abdu al-Dairy, told us in Basra with heavy sarcasm that it was "important to know the truth about our Soviet naval base at Um Qasr."

"Warships have to be on water," he said. "They

Sen. Mason Feels Budget Should Be Cut, but

HOBART
State Senator Edwyn E. Mason (R-48th Dist.) feels that the state budget should be cut, but feels that Governor Carey is cutting it in the wrong places.

Mason cites a move to cut funds for volunteer firemen training as a prime example. "Nobody does more good than our volunteer firemen," he said. Their program, less than $300,000 a year, is cut out and at the same time we are preparing to increase the budget of the State Council of the Arts (an old Mason foe) from $34 million to more than $36 million.

Another group that has frequently felt the results of Mason's wrath is the State University of New York. He said that the state is handing out numerous research and study projects to the State University.

"I think these could be cut down," Mason said. "Many of the experimental projects could certainly be eliminated."

Mason said he felt that "by looking ahead, the state could maintain all essential programs and have a surplus." He said he felt the state had too many employees and many unnecessary programs that could be eliminated. Prime targets for Mason's economy axe are the aforementioned State University and Council on the Arts, as well as the Human Rights Commission. "Every time we get a new governor he focuses his eyes on the White House," Mason maintains. To attract attention in other states, he immediately embarks on a spending program.

The result? "We are the most heavily taxed state in the country. Our per capita taxes are roughly 20 per cent over those in California, the next most heavily taxed state, and 40 per cent over the national average.

"During Rockefeller's administration he taxed everything in sight and we accumulated a number of programs that cost a tremendous amount of money. Governor Carey during his campaign promised no tax increases. Now he has proposed a $10.5 billion budget, an increase of about 900 million, the biggest jump in years. What we had better do is tighten our belts and get rid of the luxury programs."

Turning to other matters, Mason spoke of the recent furor in Albany over the actions of a lobbyist who claimed to have influenced votes by procuring female companions for state legislators.

Speaking from a background of nearly a quarter century in Albany, Mason called most lobbyists "men of substance, experts in their fields, and most dignified."

Lobbyists serve a useful public function, he said. They furnish expertise in their particular fields that is badly needed because no legislator can possibly become an expert on the numerous classes of legislation on which he must vote.

Speaking specifically of the lobbyist who created the uproar in Albany, Mason said "I have never known anyone to use such tactics."

Mason, who still maintains his office in the State Capitol, watched the recent "furniture raid" from a bystander's viewpoint. ("All I lost was a copy of the budget") but feels that the whole incident hurt legislators in the eyes of their constituents.

"This sort of thing creates a terrible impression," he said.

"What are the citizens of the state supposed to think when they are represented by men who act in this manner?"

The whole "raid" was useless, according to Mason. He explained that it was formerly the custom for the new majority party to take over the best furniture and offices, but that construction of the new legislator's office building, with all offices and furnishings alike, should have brought the practice to an end.

"It was utter idiocy," he said. "Some of the Democrats got pass keys and raided the offices. They not only took furniture but personal items as well."

Mason sees it all as part of a slow decline in the quality and caliber of the people in the state legislature. "We have some people in the legislature who never should be there at all."

SNOWPERSON MELTS IN COMFORT

THE PUDDLE RESEMBLES A MOAT

Snow, Ice, Rain, Slush and A Few Harbingers of . . .

KINGSTON
Winter dumped a couple of quick inches of snow on Ulster County last night, but following on the heels of the blast of winter was an early breath of spring.

Temperatures were forecast to climb near 50 today, with southerly winds gusting to 15 miles per hour. That's a good general description of a day in March, a reminder that winter's slush covered landscape will turn into the budding green of spring.

Small animals, encouraged by the rising thermometer, were out foraging in the snow, which was drizzle dampened into slush. Opossum tracks were seen in Esopus, and a number of robins have been spotted in the county, deluded by this winter's fluctuating temperatures.

There were no weather related accidents or incidents reported by the county's police agencies today. The drizzle and the rising temperatures combined to render most of the county's roads merely wet instead of slippery.

Children looked longingly at the fresh snow this morning as they waited to go out to play. The damp snow was of an especially firm packing variety, suitable for small snowmen in its limited quantity or very hard snow balls if combat seemed the order of the day.

If winter was gentle to Ulster County, it hit hard over the weekend and Monday at the Far West. Up to three feet of new snow fell on the mountains of northern New Mexico and southern Colorado.

Rain and warm temperatures are the despair of skiers and snowmobilers, but they shouldn't give up hope yet. Motorists are advised not to take off snow tires and put the chains away. The notorious Blizzards of '88 was a March storm.

The warmer weather was forecast to continue tomorrow, with temperatures in the 40s, and rain.

High Praise for New Teletype

By MATT SPIRENG

KINGSTON
Heralded by some as one of the greatest recent advances in the law enforcement field, a new high-speed computer teletype system which allows almost instantaneous retrieval of desired information is receiving high praise from area law enforcement officials.

The new computer terminals have been introduced at several locations in Ulster County, including the Kingston Police Department, the Ulster County Sheriff's Department, state police stations in Hurley, Highland and Ellenville, Saugerties Village Police Department and the New Paltz Emergency Communications Center.

"I think it's a fantastic machine," said Sheriff Thomas F. Mayone of the new system, explaining that it not only increases efficiency but also gives better protection to police officers.

The system being installed throughout the state allows law enforcement officers to have at their fingertips information involving such things as stolen autos, guns, boats, securities and other articles, wanted and missing persons, license plates used in crimes, all license and registration information from the New York State Department of Motor Vehicles, and all driver and registration information from across the nation.

Of course, police teletype systems are not new to the state—but the highspeed system now being introduced offers great advantages over the old system in regard to speed and ease of operation.

The old system transmitted

75 words per minute; the new system transmits 1,200 words per minute.

"It's so fast it's like tearing out a piece of paper and you've got your answer back," commented Town of New Paltz Director of Public Safety John F. Taylor—an apt description since the machine sounds like paper being torn when it's printing its lightning reply.

"It's like day and night," said Saugerties Village Police Chief Gordon Keeley in comparing the new and old systems. "It's probably one of the greatest advancements in police work."

The printing speed of the new system is not the only advantage, however. It has a visual display terminal which shows a prepared formation which the operator merely has to fill in the blanks, rather than typing a long list of easily mistaken code numbers and letters as under the old system. It also edits, makes corrections and alerts the operator if he makes a mistake. There is also no wait; previously, long delays would exist as the old slow system began to bog down under the number of inquiries.

Lt. Stanley M. Kowalik, Zone Commander of state police in Greene and Ulster counties said of the system: "It's one of the best improvements in regard to aid to the man on the road to come along in a long time."

Kingston Police Chief Julius M. Glassman's description of the system perhaps summed up the feelings of most police officers: "Very new, modern, efficient, helpful—everything good."

Assistant DA To Virgin Islands

KINGSTON

Miss Ellen Donovan, first assistant district attorney, has accepted appointment as public defender in the Virgin Islands.

"I've been thinking about relocating for some time," Miss Donovan told the Freeman. "It's a beautiful island and I loved it when I was down there (over the Christmas holidays) and I'm going to do it."

Miss Donovan, who received written confirmation of her appointment today, will be the first female public defender in the history of the Virgin Islands, an American possession. She will be relocating as soon as possible, she said. "Obviously I just can't pack up and walk out. I'm in the middle of a stolen car ring case right now."

She did not reveal what her salary would be at her new job but said it was more than the $21,000 she is earning now as first assistant district attorney.

Miss Donovan, a Kingston native and a graduate of Albany Law School, became the first woman appointed to the district attorney's staff in March of 1969. She was named first assistant in February of 1973.

Dollar Recovers

BRUSSELS (UPI) — The U.S. dollar recovered a little lost ground on foreign exchange markets today but fell in Zurich for the ninth consecutive trading day. Gold prices declined.

A Paris banker said central banks probably intervened to keep the dollar from falling too low. A Brussels banker said "it cannot be ruled out that the central banks moved to support the dollar."

Gold opened one dollar down, at $181.50, in Zurich and 75 cents down in London, at $180.25.

The dollar opened in Zurich at 2.4625 Swiss francs, one quarter of one centime down since Monday's close. It brought the dollar's losses in terms of Swiss francs to eight centimes since Feb. 5 and 24 centimes since early December.

The dollar closed marginally lower in Tokyo at 293.40 yen, down from 293.45.

Elsewhere, the American currency made some advances.

Opening rates included Frankfurt, 2.3230 German marks, up from 2.3180; Paris, 4.2825 French francs, up from 4.27; Brussels, unchanged at 35.05 Belgian francs; Amsterdam, 2.4105 Dutch guilders, up from 2.4065; Milan, 637.12 Italian lire, up from 636.60.

In London, the price of a pound fell marginally, from $2.3925 to $2.3910.

Similar teaching programs will be held for faculty, staff and interested parents at the high school and elementary school, following school sessions on March 5th.

Red Hook Nursery School Plans Social

Church Street Community Nursery School will sponsor a card and game party Thursday, March 6 at United Methodist Church in Red Hook. Dessert will be served at 7:30 p.m. with cards and games scheduled for 8 p.m. In case of snow, the party will take place March 13 at the same times.

The nursery school is located in the educational building of the United Methodist Church of Red Hook, corner of Church and West Market Streets. The Church has sponsored the school since it officially opened in 1971. Church Street Community Nursery School serves the Northern Dutchess County area and is non-sectarian and non-profit. Children from three years of age are enrolled. There are two certified teachers and two full time assistants in a five day and three day morning class. The objectives of the nursery school are to help physical, social and emotional, and intellectual development. The school's facilities include two classrooms, a fenced-in play area outdoors, and a large room for large muscle activities such as riding toys, and indoor gym and games. There are openings for children in both five-day and three-day morning sessions. Ticket reservations may be made by contacting the church office.

Home Canning Equipment For Do-It-Yourself Gardeners

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Spring at this point may be only a flickering hope kept alive by the arrival of an occasional seed catalogue in the mail.

But for many consumers burned by last year's shortage of home canning equipment, there's one spring problem that must be dealt with now: Will there be enough canning equipment around this year to warrant putting in an order for seeds?

Writes a reader in Ionia, Mich.:

"After the experience many garden growers had last year trying to purchase canning supplies to preserve the fruits of their hard (and I do mean hard) labor, it would make anyone think twice before planting a garden this year."

"With a world-wide food shortage the President is crying to conserve and the consumer is crying high prices, it's pretty damn ridiculous that the people who always grew their gardens and preserved their harvests cannot buy the necessary items to do so."

"It is also a shame that big business can monopolize an industry to the point that the labor people cannot purchase such small items as can lids in an effort to help their own survival as well as conserving bushels of fruit and vegetables that have to rot..."

Well, the initial reading on this year's situation is that it will be better than last year.

The production of jars, lids and other canning equipment is up 30 per cent. But it also appears seed buying is up.

That's the word at least from the office of Virginia Knauer, President Ford's consumer adviser. Her staff has been riding herd on the canning problem for some time and has been receiving stacks of letters similar to the one printed above.

Part of last year's problem, according to the industry, was a shortage of raw materials, especially tin and soda ash. But they've been able to step up production since then. The unknown factor, of course, is demand.

It seemed more people than ever got into home canning last year in an attempt to end-run inflated food prices. The fact that seed buying is up this year may well indicate another big summer for home gardens.

Then, too, there was some hoarding last year. And at least one company has conceded it put out some lids that were defective —and it offered affected consumers refunds last year.

So right now it appears there will be a lot better chance of your being able to buy canning equipment this year —provided no one hoards. And to put down another rumor, so far as we can detect there is no seed shortage developing, although with increased buying it wouldn't hurt to order now to make sure you get what you want.

Not Eggsactly Ecological... But

Dear Heloise:

I am not an ecology nut, but I could not stand to throw away the beautiful egg cartons made of styrofoam. They are just like new once you put the eggs away and it is such a waste to chuck them. I was trying to think of something else to use them for and came up with this idea.

Wash and dry them. Then use them as gelatin molds! I cut the top off the carton and just spooned in the liquid in each egg cup. Put them in the refrigerator and let it do the rest.

When you are ready to use them, just take a knife and run it down the middle of the carton. Turn it over and pop each one out carefully.

The greatest thing is that they jell faster and there isn't much mess to clean up.

Heloise II

Gals, there has to be a "gillion" other things we can use these for. So put your thinking caps on and let us know in care of this paper.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

It always bothered me to let my baby go to bed with damp hair following his bath and shampoo.

Then we remembered Dad's hot comb. It works like a charm and baby doesn't object if I put him on the counter so he can make funny faces in the mirror.

Better yet, I plug in the comb by Dad's easy chair and let him style his son's hair while they share a book.

This gives me a few extra minutes to straighten the bathroom, pick up toys or just take a breather before putting the little guy to bed.

Sharon Reedy

Dear Heloise:

To keep chocolates fresh, place them in a plastic bag and put them in the freezer compartment on your refrigerator.

Esther J. Judkins

Dear Heloise:

Recently I attended a covered dish dinner. One of the ladies opened a sack of bread and twisted the twistem around a button on her blouse.

When clean-up time came, she knew just where the twistem was!

Blowing the Whistle on the Manager

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

© 1975 Chicago Tribune
N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My co-workers and I have worked in this variety store for nearly 35 years. It's a multi-million-dollar chain operation which is well known from coast to coast.

For the last ten years, we have had a manager who we think has a screw loose. First of all, he breaks all the company rules. He should work from 8 to 5:30 P.M. but he leaves the store every day at noon and doesn't come back until the next morning. We don't know where he goes, but he tells everyone that if there are any phone calls for him, we should say he "stepped out for a minute" and will call them back. We're supposed to get their names and numbers and he returns their calls the following day.

He is very abusive to those under him. We have gotten together and decided that ten years of taking his abuse and covering up for him is enough, and we want to blow the whistle on him by reporting his absenteeism to the executive office. But who would do this? No one wants to write the letter and sign his name to it. We've been battling this for years.

Some of us would even quit but we are so close to retirement and pensions we hate to do it. Answer please?

WORKING STIFF
DEAR STIFF: If you're telling it like it is (and I believe you are), no one person should write the letter. ALL of you should write it—and sign your names.

DEAR ABBY: I just returned from a meeting. It was open to the public. A Protestant Minister offered a prayer and in it he said, I ask this in the name of our Lord, Jesus Christ.

Abby, I am all for prayer, but I am not of the Christian faith, and I was not the only person there who wasn't. Don't you think it's time that some clergymen realize that Christianity is not the only faith in the world? I know I am not alone in my feelings. I happen to live in a small town where there are many non-Christian people who are devout in their own religions.

I don't mean any disrespect to anyone, Abby, but this may open the eyes of some clergymen who go out of their churches and into the community and thoughtlessly assume that Christianity is the only religion in the world.

SMALL TOWN, MO.
DEAR SMALL TOWN: You make a good point.

DEAR ABBY: Two months ago, I got full custody of my four-year-old son. His mother gave him up because her social life was more important.

When I got custody, it was understood that all visitation rights would go to my ex-wife's parents, since she didn't care if she ever saw the boy again. NOW she says maybe she will see him next month, or in six months from now—she isn't "sure."

I called her yesterday to ask if my present wife could adopt the boy. She said she would never consent to that because she didn't want to give up her "motherhood."

Now, if you can make any sense out of that, you're pretty smart.

The boy has fully accepted my wife as his "mommy" and doesn't miss his former mother at all, mainly because he hardly ever saw her.

I've talked to a lawyer about this and he said he didn't think my wife could adopt the boy without my ex's consent but he didn't know much about it because he had never handled a case like that before. Can you help us?

PUZZLED
DEAR PUZZLED: I am not qualified to give legal advice, and from what you tell me, neither is your lawyer. Get another lawyer, and let him advise you.

DEAR ABBY: I need your advice on a problem. My in-laws have a habit of coming to visit us without giving us any advance notice. They live seven hours from us by car and come for as long as three to five days.

Last week, they surprised

Indiana Makes Fast Work Of Big Ten Race

The Big Ten race is over. Mighty Indiana, the No. 1 ranked team in the nation, ended it with a flourish Monday night, crushing Wisconsin 93-58 to become only the third team to win or tie for the Big Ten basketball title three successive years.

The victory guaranteed Indiana, 14-0 in Big Ten play and 25-0 for the season, at least a tie for first in the conference. The Hoosiers can wrap up the undisputed title by the largest margin ever with a victory over second-place Purdue Saturday night.

Wisconsin, last in the conference, managed to close to within two points early in the first half. But then Indiana exploded, outscoring Wisconsin 28-8 during one stretch for a 48-24 lead. The Hoosiers scored the first eight points of the second half and it was all over.

Scott May led Indiana with 23 points while Kent Benson had 16 and Quinn Buckner 12. Dale Koehler, Wisconsin's leading scorer, was held to two free throws in the first half and finished with six points.

In other games involving ranked teams Monday night,

Alabama (5) downed Louisiana State 80-76, Kentucky (8) ripped Mississippi 108-89, Marquette (9) crushed Butler 77-55, North Carolina (12) downed Virginia Tech 87-75, Notre Dame (18) trounced St. Joseph's (Ind.) 97-81 and Toledo upset South Carolina (20) 78-72.

SPORTS / TODAY

Leon Douglas scored 25 points and blocked 10 shots as Southeastern Conference leader Alabama defeated Louisiana State. Alabama led by as many as 15 shortly after the half but had to struggle to keep LSU from going ahead in the final minutes. LSU moved to within one point, 70-69, before Johnny Dill and Charles Cleveland combined for eight of Alabama's final 10 points. Glenn Hansen had 29 for LSU.

Freshman Jack Givens, starting his first game, scored 26 points to lead Kentucky past Mississippi in a game marred by eight technical fouls. The win left Kentucky a game behind Alabama in the SEC race.

Bo Ellis had 24 points as Marquette ran its record to 18-3 with a rout of Butler and Adrian Dantley erupted for 36 points and hauled down 14 rebounds as Notre Dame outmuscled St. Joseph's. Mike Larsen scored a career-high 27 points and Jim Brown scored nine of Toledo's last 14 points as the Rockets upset South Carolina.

In other major games, Penn State ripped Colgate 73-59, Mississippi State dumped Georgia 77-71, Tennessee edged Florida 85-84, Richmond topped West Virginia 84-82 in overtime, Vanderbilt beat Auburn 85-78, Detroit stopped Bradley 82-75, Michigan State whipped Iowa 90-78, Michigan shaded Minnesota 67-65 in overtime, Ohio University routed Fairfield 80-61 and Ohio State crushed Northwestern 84-66.

Dr. J's 'Holiday'

While the rest of the country relaxed over the long holiday weekend, Julius Erving was running himself ragged.

Erving wound up a weekend that started with a 63-point performance in a four-overtime loss at San Diego Friday night with a 25-point show that helped defeat the Virginia Squires 120-104 Monday afternoon. In between, there was a 26-point game and an overtime loss in Denver.

"I got home about 2:30 this morning," Erving said Monday. "But because I was so keyed up from the trip and everything, I didn't go to bed until 6:30. I tried to sleep until the last possible minute and didn't crawl out of bed until 12:30. I'm really looking forward to that day off."

Erving was so eager to dispatch the Squires quickly that he said he was "just going straight to the hoop" in the first half so "I could rest the last quarter. And that's the way it turned out."

Erving scored 19 of his points in the first half as the Nets opened up a 67-52 bulge. Virginia never threatened again and New York, which had dropped behind Kentucky in their neck-and-neck race in the ABA East after the San Diego loss, moved back to a halfgame lead.

Larry Kenon added 22 points and Billy Paulitz 20 for New York while Red Robbins paced the last place Squires with 17 points.

Elsewhere, Utah beat Memphis 114-100 and Indiana edged St. Louis 100-99.

Stars 114, Sounds 100

Ron Boone hit 30 points and rookie Moses Malone added 29 and 14 rebounds to lead Utah. It was the third win in four games for new coach Tom Nissalke, raising the Stars' overall record to 27-33.

Pacers 100, Spirits 99

George McGinnis scored 29 points, including a crucial tip-in with just under a minute to go, to help Indiana hold off a furious charge by St. Louis.

BOB SEAGREN WINS ROWING COMPETITION

(UPI)

Rote Likes Seagren's Chances

ROTONDA, Fla. (UPI) — Defending champion Kyle Rote Jr. held a half-point lead going into the second round of the Superstars games today, but the boyish soccer star shook his head and said, "It's all over."

"Bob Seagren has won it already," said the 24-year-old divinity student and 1973 rookie of the year in the North American Soccer League.

Rote picked up a quick 10 points when he beat O.J. Simpson in the tennis finals, first of four opening-day events Monday. But he didn't anticipate that Seagren would defeat the same man in a rowboat.

Rote outswam Seagren, the pole vaulter who won this contest in 1973, and finished the first four events with 20 points.

While Seagren had tallied 17, Simpson had collected 19 1-2 with second places in tennis and rowing and a tie for second in weight lifting.

Rote wasn't worried about Simpson, the Buffalo Bills running back.

He was more concerned about Seagren, who makes a part-time profession of competing in the Superstars competition, which tests athletes outside their own specialties.

"Bob Seagren has won it already because of his 10 points in rowing," Rote said. "O.J. has talent, but Bob has his events picked so well."

He expected Seagren to place high in the obstacle course chase, the half mile run and the bike race.

"Look at the way Bob has been training," Rote said.

"He has been riding the bikes since last August."

Rote has been training since Dec. 1 for this mini-decathlon, which offers $25,000 for first place, $15,000 for second and $10,000 for third, with a $300 bonus for each point toted on the board.

First place in any one of the 10 events is worth 10 points, with seven for second, four for third, two for fourth and one for fifth.

Others in the superstars finals include Lou Brock of the St. Louis Cardinals, Jack Ham of the Pittsburgh Steelers, Mike Hargrove of the Texas Rangers, Franco Harris of the Steelers, John Havlicek of the Boston Celtics, Lawrence McCutcheon of the Los Angeles Rams, skier Hugo Nindl, tennis star Marty Riessen, speed skater Ard Schenk, pole vaulter Steve Smith, and linebaker Phil Villapiano of the Oakland Raiders.

The 1975 finals developed into a showdown between Rote, Seagren and Simpson, each winners of earlier elimination tournaments.

"This year with both Bob and O.J., I know that even if I perform my best, I may not win," said Rote, a 185-pound six-footer, and son of the well-known former pro football star and television sportscaster, Kyle Rote.

Harris got in the chase when he lifted 270 pounds to beat Simpson and Villapiano, who could only manage 260 each. The brawny back also was third best in tennis.

Rote said that in today's bowling and baseball hitting competition "anything can happen."

"But you have to have some natural ability," he said. "I could train for a year and still not take the 100-yard dash."

To better his bowling game, Rote said, "I read a lot of books." To get ready for the swim sprint, which he won handily, he went to Coach

George McMillan at Southern Methodist University.

"He suggested I kick a lot harder and it worked," he said.

Rote said he wasn't nervous during last year's competition, but Monday "I ate some pancakes for breakfast and they started doing flip-flops."

"But if I finish last this year I won't feel so bad," he added.

Favors Gambling

CLEVELAND (UPI) — U.S. Rep. Ronald M. Mottl, D-Ohio, said Monday he favored government-sanctioned betting on professional sports because it would hit illegal bookmakers where it hurts most—in the pocketbook.

"Sure, I'm all for legalizing professional sports wagering," the freshman congressman told UPI. "A number of my constituents also favor legalizing professional gambling because it's a $40 billion to $50 billion industry."

"Right now, about 10 percent of the money generated in illegal gambling on all sports goes to pay off public officials and policemen. With legalization, that would be eliminated. I would think that it behooves us to look very seriously at the legalization of sports wagering."

Mottl, the driving force in getting a state lottery formed in Ohio while a state senator, said stringent laws could be enforced to make sure athletes would not "throw" games. He said the penalty for such offense would be "so stiff that it would, in itself, be a deterrent for an athlete to even think about throwing a game."

"The state and federal governments could use the additional revenue derived from sports wagering," Mottl added. "It would put the illegal bookmaker out of business if we legalized numbers, lotteries and sports wagering. "Organized crime right now is associated with loan-sharking, drug traffic and many other forms of crime throughout the world."

Finley Does Some Scolding

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Baseball's salary arbitration hearings were recessed for the three-day holiday weekend, but that didn't keep Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley from speaking out on a couple of subjects he found not to his liking.

The hearings resume today with utility infielder Ted Kubiak presenting his case for a pay hike before an impartial third party.

During the weekend lull, Finley took the opportunity to clear the air on two sensitive subjects. For one, he made it known he wasn't pleased with Dick Moss, counsel for the Major League Players Association, for publicly releasing correct salary figures of five Oakland players and then scolded A's captain Sal Bando for talking too much.

The sometimes volatile Finley Monday denied he released the original salary reports of non-arbitrated settlements with the players. Moss, in accusing the A's owner earlier, said Finley's "leaks" violated a gentleman's agreement.

"Besides," added Moss, "in every case, the figures were low."

So to correct the incorrect figures, Moss said Joe Rudi signed his 1975 contract for $84,000, Vida Blue $80,000, Billy North $55,000, Gene Tenace $51,000 and Paul Lindblad $50,000. Dave Hamilton agreed to terms Saturday night but his pay rate was not revealed.

In denying he was the source of the original reports, Finley said Moss' action was "the height of stupidity" and in direct breach of the agreement to keep out-of-arbitration salary settlements private.

The only figures he released, Finley said, were those for Ken Holtzman and Rollie Fingers, both of whom had arbitration hearings last week. The arbitrator ruled in favor of Finley in the case of Holtzman, who'll receive $93,000 next season, and Fingers won his case and came away with contract for $89,000.

As for Bando, last week he sought to be released from his Wednesday arbitration hearing and offered to settle through further negotiation. Finley, however, turned down the request.

Bando reportedly wanted a $125,000 contract with the owner holding out for $25,000 less.

The third baseman indicated that in asking for a non-arbitrated settlement, he would play under Finley's terms if a contract could not be agreed upon, leaving the way open for a possible test of baseball's reserve clause before the U.S. Supreme Court.

Finley said he was upset at Bando for describing the A's front office as "the worst in baseball." In getting even, the owner described Bando as a "pop-off" and "one of the worst fielding third basemen in baseball."

There were indications Finley might also strip Bando of his status as team captain. "He's been the captain for the past several years and not because the players voted for him," a still irate Finley said. "I selected him. I've also repeatedly warned him to stop popping off."

Bando denied he used the "worst in baseball" description. He said he told an Oregon audience the Oakland front office "wasn't as good as others."

NPS Women Romp, Men Flop

NEW PALTZ

While New Paltz State's men's varsity basketball team was scoring 83 points and losing Monday night (85-83 to Western Connecticut), the college's women's squad went to Washingtonville and won with two points less (81-25 over Harriman College). The Hawk males, down by ten at the half, rallied after intermission to go ahead by a point with some 13 minutes to go. The locals stayed in front until the last two minutes of the contest when the visitors pulled it out.

A buzzer shot by NP's Mike Johnson failed to hit the mark.

Ron Domanski, scoring 14 points in the second half, and Bob Irish, had 16 apiece for the Hawks, now 3-17. NP is at Dominican tonight.

Freshman Jan Catarina, hitting most of her shots from the right baseline, flipped in 32 points and Marilyn Beaton added 20 as the Paltz women romped to third win in eight games. Noreen Drucker scored 19 points for the winners, whose next game is Thursday at 7 p.m. against Russell Sage in Elting Gym.

A Great Value

Rocklets Out to Stop UCCC Jinx

By STEVE KANE

KINGSTON
Howie Pierson isn't sure when the last time was hisRockland Community College basketball team won a game from Ulster.
"Was it seven years ago?"

he asked. Tonight Pierson's Rocklets will visit the Senate Gym with hopes of improving their coach's memory, but in Pierson's words, "It doesn't look good."

Pierson said, "We thought our chance was down here (December 10 at Rockland). They had a new coach, and he didn't know exactly what his players were going to do, but we fell apart."

Ulster took advantage of the situation to record an 81-73 win behind Rachid Walker's 28 points.

Since that game both clubs have improved. While the Senators have accumulated a 15-3 record and risen to the number two ranking in the region, Rockland has quietly climbed to 14-6, its latest win coming in overtime on the Staten Island court.

Tonight's game, despite Pierson's pessimism, won't be a pushover for UCCC.

Rockland has some individual talent that Ulster will be hard pressed to stop. Bill McGeorge, at 6-6, ranks seventh in scoring and fourth in rebounding in the region, and he hit his 20 point average against Ulster the first time.

McGeorge is so talented he can play better," said Pierson.

Ron Essie is another Rocket who has earned respect. Pierson said that pair holds his team together.

We've shown improvements in teamwork and defense. We're moving toward our peak."

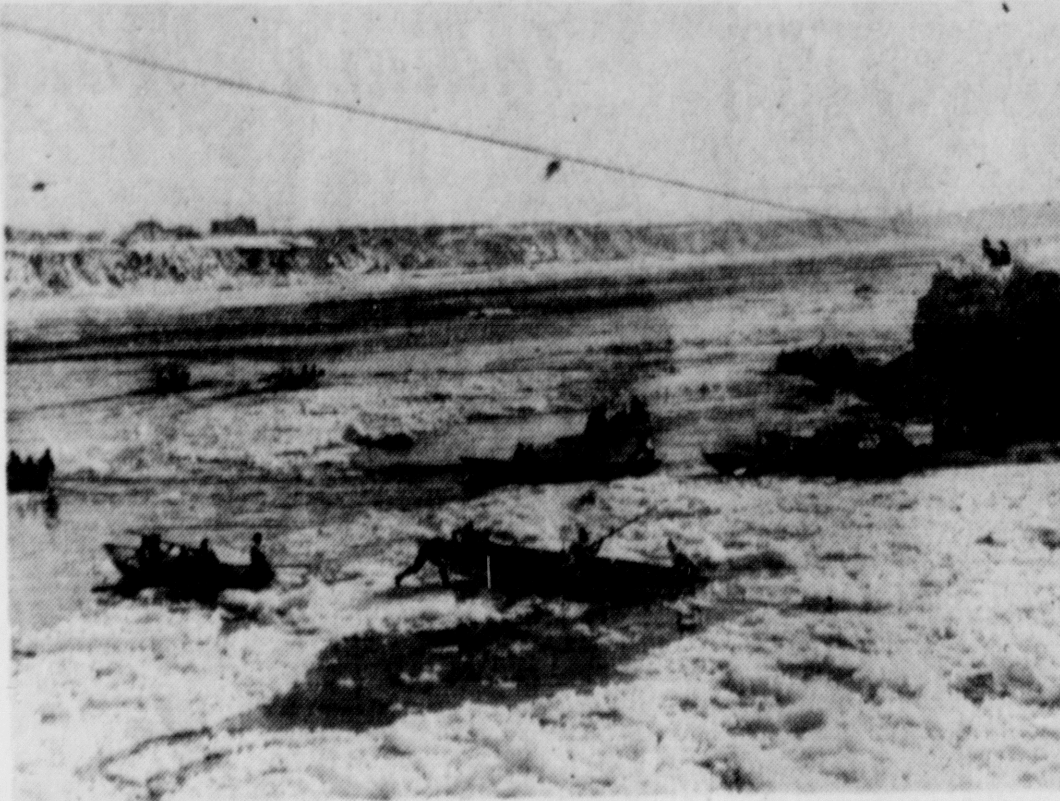

Mike Bernstein of Ulster also thinks his team is moving toward its peak. Injuries, though, have hampered the Senators' recent progress, and the latest victim is Chris Cummings. Cummings suffered a hip pointer in a brief appearance against Dutchess Saturday and is out "at least a couple of weeks," according to Bernstein.

Carl Mabry's ankle is still a problem, and his absence has hurt UCCC. "Carl covers up for everyone so well on defense that when he was out our mistakes really showed," Bernstein said, "but we're learning to overcome that, and we're starting to work on our offense."

Ulster has two more games after this on its schedule, road contests against Sullivan and Post. Rockland has one remaining at Westchester. Pierson, who is anticipating a tournament bid, would appreciate at least one more win.

"The way things are going lately, anybody can win it," Pierson said. "Nobody is playing super. The great teams aren't motivated. I saw Westchester play Post the other night, and Westchester only won by two. We've got a chance."

Pierson is realistic about his squad's ability to stop its victory drought against Ulster. "Ulster's a great club," he said. "They can control the ball. I rate them second or third in the region."

These Are Not Eskimos

Half-Court Pennants Decided

SAUGERTIES

Championships have been decided in the four divisions of the SAA Winter Half-Court Basketball League, which concluded its biggest season ever, with 256 players making up 48 teams in the four divisions.

In the A Division finals, West Hurley Arco, Monday winner, trounced Howard Johnson's, 87-71, as Bob Bondar pumped in 32 points.

The Monday Hacketts nipped the Friday Fullers, 59-57 in overtime for the B Division title. Clark Hackett of the winners and Jim Mittelekamp of the losers scored 21 points each.

Two Friday loop teams survived the C Division playoffs, with Rotron topping Mountain Trail Inn 64-56 for the C crown. Ralph Longendyke hooped 38 points for Rotron.

Steve Haun paced Mountain Trail with 32. MIT is a unique aggregation with a roster listing a father, George Haun and his two sons, Steve (18) and Eric (13).

Beckert's edged B. C. Bombers 58-55 for the Teen Division laurels. Russell Scally, whose closing burst won for Beckert's led all scorers with 35 points.

The Francis Amrod Award, emblematic of the Most Valuable Player of the A, B and C divisions, was voted by league officials to Jon Hoyt of West Hurley Arco. The Bud Smith Award as MVP in the Teen Division went to Beckert's Russell Scally, who, incidentally, had won the Fred Davi Award as MVP in last spring's Half-Court Teen division.

Florist Marks 104th, Never Missed a Day

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Zachariah D. Blackstone, who celebrated his 104th birthday Sunday, says his secret to longevity is a clean conscience and a love of God. "A good clean conscience. And also to live with God. I think that's the key to a long and happy life," said Blackstone, a florist who hasn't missed a day at work in more than three quarters of a century. Blackstone said he gave up cigarettes and coffee 50 years ago in order to protect his health.

He opened his first floral shop in Washington 77 years ago and now has five shops in the area. Over the years he has served diplomats and politicians, statesmen and their ladies.

He said he once was called almost daily by the White House to send flowers to Alice Roosevelt Longworth. Blackstone said "Uncle Joe" Cannon, the legendary Speaker of the House, "used to stop by every morning to buy a carnation for his lapel."

He said he has a "distinct recollection" of Benjamin Harrison's inauguration in 1893.

WATTSFIELD, Vt. —A chair lift carrying 79 skiers lost cable tension and then tightened violently Monday, tossing six riders from their seats. Four were injured, including one man who was in critical condition.

The victims fell from as high as 30 feet. Riders who were not tossed out waited up to 2½ hours before they were rescued by maintenance men using ropes. Some got safely to the ground sooner.

A spokesman at the Mad River Glen ski resort said an unidentified skier in his teens accidentally caused the mishap when his clothing caught in the chair lift at the point where he was supposed to get off.

When he tried to wrench free, the excessive swing of the chair caused the cable to jump a guide rail. This, in turn, caused the entire lift to stop suddenly.

Woman At 139 Is Dead

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Tass news agency said today one of the oldest women on earth, Khaf Lasuria, a narrator of local tales and legends, has died. She was 139. Tass said she died in Kutol village in the Caucasian region of Abkhazia.

She left more than 100 grandchildren, great-grandchildren and great-great-grandchildren, the agency said.

Great ages are periodically claimed for Russians living in the Caucasus mountains although documentary proof rarely exists. A photograph distributed by Tass last summer put her age at 140 then.

Bell Set as Speaker

KINGSTON

H. Clark Bell, vice chairman of the state temporary commission studying the water supply needs of South-eastern New York and former assemblyman, will be guest speaker at Thursday's meeting of the League of Women Voters of Mid-Ulster County, to be held at 8 p.m. at the Statewide Savings Bank, Wall Street.

According to Mrs. Sarah Mulligan, chairman of a League committee to undertake the study of area water supplies, the League will study water problems in the towns of Kingston, Hurley, Woodstock and Olive.

She said local officials will be interviewed, and the problem considered from the standpoint of environmental quality concerns and land use. Mrs. Milligan said the League was going to begin its study by examining the report of Bell's commission on the controversial subject.

Blessing, No Ordination

A woman candidate for the Episcopal Priesthood was denied ordination because of her sex. The Rev. Alison Palmer (kneeling) received a blessing from Bishop John T. Walker, but was turned away without ordination because of the church's barrier against woman priests. (UPI)

MINEOLA, N.Y. (UPI) — Nassau County District Attorney Denis Dillon says he will investigate a complaint by an anti-abortion group that a baby born after an unsuccessful abortion last month was permitted to die after surviving on its own for eight hours.

Dillon said Monday he received a telegram from the Long Island Coalition for Life alleging that "a viable fetus resulted from an abortion performed at the Nassau Medical Center in East Meadow, L.I. on or around Jan. 19 and no action was taken to save the fetus' life."

Dillon said his office would "look at the whole situation to see if any laws have been violated" by personnel at the medical center.

The group, acting after the manslaughter conviction Saturday of a Boston physician, Dr. Kenneth Edelin, for the telegram read:

"A live human being, whose birth was prematurely induced by abortion, was denied all the ordinary medical means and reasonable effort to preserve and protect and was left unattended eight hours until death ensued."

"In protest, we hereby file criminal complaint of infanticide against the medical personnel involved."

Hospital authorities reportedly denied knowledge of the incident but promised to investigate on their own and cooperate with Dillon.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The huge Chemical Bank slashed its interest rate for prime business loans to 8½ per cent from 9 per cent today.

That is the lowest prime rate of any commercial bank presently prevailing. It is also the lowest prime rate since last spring when interest rates started rising rapidly and the commercial bank prime rate peaked out at 12 per cent in July.

A number of other banks recently have cut the prime rate to 8¼ per cent in the point slash in the Federal Reserve Bank's discount rate on loans to banks to 7¼ per cent.

Federal Reserve officials have been saying in recent weeks that the statistical formula on which many banks base their prime rates would justify lower rates than have prevailed recently, but bank officials have been reluctant to slash interest rates too rapidly for fear of triggering another rash of inflationary loan demands.

WEST POINT, N.Y. (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., told future U.S. Army officers Monday the nation expects the military to halt "waste, inefficiency and extravagance" along with other federal budgetary restraints to help the economy.

In a speech prepared for the U.S. Military Academy, Kennedy said national security depends not only on a strong defense and support for U.S. allies but "meeting the challenges to the worldwide economy as a whole."

As part of this, he said the nation was "calling upon the services to mute competition that often leads to duplication of military capabilities, to overemphasis on programs that command the greatest interest and attention."

"And the nation is calling upon the services to make the maximum effort to end waste, inefficiency and extravagance," he said. "Let us therefore spend all we need on defense but let us not spend more than we need, at the expense of competing critical demands."

He said the military, with other Americans, must "share the 'butter' of domestic and international economic resources as well as the 'guns' of military security."

NEW PALTZ
State police are seeking two white males who allegedly attacked and robbed a State University College at New Paltz student near his dormitory early today.

BCI investigators said the student, Reid B. Wissmer, 21, of the Bronx, was carrying personal items from his car into Gage Hall shortly before 2 a.m. when two men attacked him.

In the scuffle, Wissmer was allegedly struck several times with a club or nightstick, said a state police officer. He was not seriously injured.

The two men took Wissmer's wallet which contained no cash, but did contain credit cards and a personal check, investigators said.

Both robbers were described as about six feet tall. One was clean shaven and the other wore a ski mask.

These are frightening but all too familiar words. But we must face up to the fact that cardiovascular diseases claim more lives than all other causes of death combined. Says Nixon Hindered U. S. Salt Delegation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Paul Nitze, who served for years on the U.S. team negotiating the strategic arms limitation treaty with the Soviets, says the Russians filled their SALT team with spies and tried to subvert the Americans with drink.

In a recent speech to the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory in New Mexico, the text of which was made available today, Nitze also said the U.S. delegation's "efforts were less than optimum" and laid much of the blame on then President Richard Nixon.

He said Nixon "had such a passion for secrecy and such a lack of confidence in the reliability and judgment of what he considered to be the bureaucracy that not even the head of the U.S. delegation was kept precisely informed of what was happening at the higher level."

He said Nixon would use Soviet interpreters when meeting privately with the Russians instead of Americans. A subsequent written description of the meetings would not be given to the SALT negotiating team. "This resulted in unnecessary difficulties, some of significant consequence, in parrying Soviet strategy and tactics," Nitze said.

Nitze said at least one-third of the Soviet SALT negotiators had worked in the KGB, the Soviet espionage agency, and that the executive secretary of the Russian team, Nikolai S. Kishilov, "was a senior KGB officer who had some years earlier been thrown out of Finland when it was revealed that he and a woman who had claimed to be his wife were running two separate spy rings in Finland."

Nitze said that when the SALT talks opened in Helsinki a few years ago, a correspondent for the Soviet news agency Tass rented a room overlooking U.S. offices. "It was equipped with telescopes, antennas and various other gadgets. It soon became apparent that all but the most secure telephone communications were being monitored. To protect their own intelligence security, the Soviets had gone to the most extreme measures.

"All their chauffeurs were officers in military intelligence ... foreign office people and even their scientists and military production people were not permitted to know anything about Soviet military deployments not appearing in the U.S. press," Nitze said.

Kissinger's Travels . . . a New Movement

JERUSALEM (UPI) — A new movement has sprung up among the newsmen traveling with Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, founded by an enterprising network reporter who is assigned to follow him around the world.

Before this trip, the reporter had buttons made which he passed around to his colleagues. They read: "Free the Kissinger 14."

Someone miscounted, however, because this time there are 16 newsmen with Kissinger.

Nancy Kissinger is along with her husband, doing the museums, seeing the antiquities, visiting with the wives while Kissinger negotiates with their husbands.

Somehow a story got started that an Arab notable at the banquet in Jerusalem for Kissinger gave her a cap knitted in her village for her son, adding that she was going to have a baby, whether she knew it or not yet.

It was one more of those stories that grow and grow. It never happened.

Cartoonists on both sides are having a good time with Kissinger. In Israel, the Jerusalem Post had a series of panels showing a little man huddled against the snow which was falling the day Kissinger arrived. The little man is saying that a Kissinger peace initiative was just like the snow, fresh and clean at first glance, but turning after a few hours to slush and mud.

In Egypt, a cartoon pictured Kissinger as the "One-Armed Swordsman," after a picture running in the Cairo movie houses. On Kissinger's empty sleeve in the cartoon is pinned a note which reads, "Amputated by Congress."

One suggestion in Kissinger's meetings with the Israeli negotiating team led by Prime Minister Itzhak Rabin may not have been entirely serious. It was to consider a proposal alleged to have come from Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands. The Sinai desert—the focus of Kissinger's negotiations for a new agreement between Egypt and Israel—would be set aside as a world life preserve.

Outside the government guest house at the Nile Barrage where the Damietta and Rosetta branches of the river join into one is one of those typical scenes that give some of the flavor of Egypt.

Kissinger and Sadat are meeting inside. On a square of lawn outside, Persian carpets are spread and enclosed by walls of Egyptian marquee cloth made like colorful patchwork quilts.

On the carpets are tables loaded with chicken, lamb and rice, and rich desserts. Servants in long white robes and turbans move back and forth bearing lemon and orange drinks and coffee and tea.

Sadat has thoughtfully remembered the newsmen waiting outside.

One local newsmen says Sadat has nine residences. In each, three meals are prepared daily, whether the president is there or not, as a security precaution to make his movements less easily followed by potential troublemakers.

Another Mekong River Post Is Lost

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Rebel forces today captured another Cambodian government post near the Mekong River, further eroding the chances of a supply convoy reaching Phnom Penh, military sources said.

An early morning attack by pro-Communist troops drove government forces from Stung Slaot, 35 miles south-east of Phnom Penh and just three miles east of the government stronghold at Neak Luong.

Officers in Phnom Penh said it was the third Mekong River position to fall to rebel troops in 24 hours.

Monday, the rebels captured one outpost five miles north of Neak Luong and another 10 miles south of the besieged river town.

A senior government official said about a 45-mile stretch of the 71-mile river route between the South Vietnamese frontier and Phnom Penh now is under full control of the rebel troops.

Phnom Penh has little more than two weeks' supply of rationed food and fuel on hand, the official said, and ammunition stocks are being used up faster than a 300-ton daily American airlift can feed the war machine.

Shipping sources in Saigon said they hoped to try a river convoy to Phnom Penh this week, but a shortage of skippers and crewmen has forced two cancellations of planned convoys, and even the offer of huge bonuses failed to attract enough crewmen.

Since the beginning of the rebel offensive last New Year's Eve 12 ships and barges have reached Phnom Penh. Nine have been sunk in the Mekong and one convoy was turned back by heavy shorefire.

In Saigon, the government announced the arrest of four Communists for distributing leaflets calling for a general strike and demanding the resignation of President Nguyen Van Thieu.

A spokesman said two were arrested in the biggest market in the city's Chinatown, carrying about 2,000 mimeographed leaflets. Their arrest led to another pair and police seized four Chinese-made pistols and a number of explosives, the spokesman said.

The South Vietnamese air force flew dozens of airstrikes against a Communist infiltration route in the central highlands and pilots reported 32 Molotov trucks were destroyed southwest of Kontum Monday, the command said.

Government gunships raided another 100-vehicle convoy seven miles southeast of Pleiku and reported several fires.

Decision Creates Portugal Fears

LISBON (UPI) — A decision Monday by the ruling Armed Forces Movement to make itself a permanent government body created fears among some politicians over the political future of Portugal.

The military did not spell out what form its future role in the government would take, but left little doubt it would amount to more than a watchdog position.

"The MFA intends to continue to actively intervene (in the government) and not simply as an observer," an MFA spokesman said.

He said this intervention would extend "beyond the legislative assembly," but declined to specify whether it would include the right to veto laws passed by future elected governments.

He indicated this would mean the military would keep its existing powers, including ministerial posts, after a civilian government takes power.

"This institutionalization will be maintained," he said.

Political sources said the MFA decision was reached only after heated arguments among the 200 MFA delegates attending a conference Monday.

The crux of the issue was over how much power the MFA should retain. The spokesman declined to give details after the meeting.
